I hereby irrevocably and free of charge grant to the Thuringia University- and State Library Jena the non-exclusive right to make copies of and save my publication for the purpose of electronic publishing on digital volumes as well as the institution's own repository. I furthermore entitle the Thuringia University- and State Library Jena to make my work accessible (and thereby publish it) for individual use via the internet, the use on screen or printing out. I permit the migration of the publication into other formats, if technical developments concerning long-term archiving demand it. If necessary the layout of the work may be changed in this process. The Thuringia University- and State Library Jena is entitled to make the digital dissertation available to the German National Library free of charge and, if appropriate, for the purpose to publish the publication on their repositories, making it available for public use as well as migrating the data into other formats and gathering bibliographic data in their databases.

Insofar as the work has been published or will otherwise be published or rights have been or will be given to third parties, I respect the rights of these third parties. The information concerning copyright practices of publishing houses, as accessible via the "Jisc open policy finder"-website (formerly SHERPA/RoMEO) has been used as appropriate. I have read the information on copyright, the terms and conditions concerning use and data protection as well as the information on rights and obligations (https://www.db-thueringen.de/content/publish/contract.xml) and I accept them. My right to publish in another physical form, e.g. a book in a publishing house, remains unaffected as long as it is still legally possible to publish in the Digital Library Thuringia. I affirm that, by providing this document, no third party rights, especially current copyrights, have been violated. I dispense the Friedrich Schiller University Jena from any claims of third parties. The rights of possible further authors have been taken into account. This also applies to illustrations or possible audio and video files.

I assure that the digital version submitted by me fully matches with the printed copy (besides CV / including CV*).
